PROBERTION A PAILURE.

"Liquor is still sold in Maine in spite of their beasted laws." The laws are disregarded by some of the officers themselves. This shows them to be a failure in practice and hence wrong in principle." So some talk with whom we fear the wish is father to the thought. However, let us examine these inferences.

The laws of this State forbid murder, arson and theft, but this problitute does not prevent some men from voluting these laws. There are laws against fraud, but they do not prevent it. There are laws against fraud, but they do not prevent it. There are laws rebuilding the buying and selling of voles, but these laws do not prevent the crime. Officers of all grates and parties, from the exemitive down to the puty constables, from among our koncred. Judges in the higher courts down to the Justice of the Peace, stand at the pulls (themselves or their bired fools) and shamelessly buy votes to elect themselves to office, and if electral they stop forward and perjure themselves by surearing that they have not done I work they do not also while God speaks to a man of a cartain fruit;— "Thou shall not out and it for but they do not be ten commandments. Nine of the ten probable." Thou shall not out the ten probable. "Thou shall not out the ten probable. "Thou shall not out the ten probable. "Thou shall not out the ten probable. Then shall not out that they have a fall-ure. Are his laws wrong in principle leases all men do not obey them.

We arswer, no. It does not follow that a law which is sometimes broken is a failure? Are his laws wrong in principle leases all men do not obey them.

We arswer, no. It does not follow that a law which is sometimes broken is a failure. The his laws wrong in principle leases of the law of God to his history of the season of God Amighty. Shall we say then that fool's government is a failure. The practical unsurces of a law as for instance the law against buying or selling votes does not prove the principle in the unsound. The law may be worked unskulltally, or it may fail supply because

Then let no one say, because some men fract the Maine law, that therefore Pro-bitten is a failure, or that it is wrong in inciple.—Ex.

VOTE FOR GARFIELDS-No. V.

No words of invitation cause a deeper thrill in the hearts of our voting popula-tion than these. No man hears them with indifference, and there are few indeed but can give the decided response of yea or nay.

indifference, and there are few indeed but can give the decided response of yea or may.

The Democrate say may most positively. The Southern sympathizers, the white liners, the bounty jumpers, the men who opposed the war, the repudiators, and the Roman Catholies, allsay "nay."

The Republican who knows Gen. Garfield says, with admiration and enthusiasin beaming from every feature, "yea, verily' would to fixed I could cast a thousand votes for him." To those who know him, his great kindly face comes up, his carnest, ionest words and his thrilling eloquence again resoured, and their hearts respond, "surely we will vote for him.—he was horn to be President. He is the noblest Roman of them all, and worthy to preside over this glorious Republic!"

In all our great country, most of the brave defenders of our nation's life, most of the patrictic throng who desire that peans and harmony, justice and equal rights, explication and hasting presperity prevail, will residily respond year verily, a vote for Garfield is a vote for all these. The attacks on Gen. Garfield's character are utterly unfounded and malleious, and such as no man of self-respect would restorate at this late day. A sufficient reply to them is the magnificent endorsement given to him by the incorruptible men of the 19th Congressional District. To this was added the mendorsement of the great State of Ohio, and the impection and criticism of all parties in this great land. This record of more than twenty years, unassitable save in regard to those trifling and contemptible charges, places his character for ability and integrity above all suspicion, and stamps his revilers with the brand of eternal infamy. History will give them a place-beside the revilers of Washington, Laucelu and Grant. But if Gon, Garfield were a hundred fold more distances than his worst enemies represent him to be, it would still the delities of a statesman than his weakest alunteers imagine him to be, it would still the distance of a statesman than his weakest alunteers imagine him to he the duty of every patriot to vote for Garfield. No man who is a candidate of the Solid South—with its present principles and demands—is a safe man to vote for. How much less a third-rate General, a sempetial West Pointer, unshilled in statesmanship and the wiles of political leaders, and a tool of the South, is fitted for that high office than the partiet soldies and the skilled statesman.

A vote for Garfield is a vote against the success of rebiel pointers, midnight assassins, ballot-box stuffers, and the general disfranchisement of all Southern Republicans. It is a vote in apposition to the disfranchisement of all Southern Republicans. It is a vote in apposition to the payment of many hundred utilitions for unjust. Southern claims. A vote against placing the last branch of our Federal government in the hands of those who tried to destroy it. A vote against prostituting the National Supreme Court to the service of Confederate Brigadiers. A vote against admitting four or six new Southern States with eight or ten Southern Senators. A vote against withing for ten Southern Senators. A vote against withing from the statute book the last vestige of war measures and guarantees of luture peace. A vote against taxing Northern incomes and abating the tax on Southern should natural for revience only; and a vote against the policy that would unsettle business, derange the finances, and blight the presperity that now gives hope to our toiling millions.

The complete rejutation of all the slanders against Gen, Garfield's character has given bin a stronger hold inpon the conditions of the people of his district than he ever had before. In 1879, when the slanders were the thekest, about six percent, of the Republican voic was withheld from him, because many feared there might be some cause for the vile abuse. In 1878 the intelligent voters of the 19th District were satisfied that there was absolutely pofoundation whatever for any of the stories, and his majority came up innarily one thou. and his majority came up meanly one thousand above that of 1876, and was 1,283—or 15 per cent.—higher than on the State fields of that year. Thus his vindication was complete and triumphant before the bar of public opinion, and now his former active opposers are stemping the State in his behalf.

To-bay Mr. Garfield has the fullest confidence of these who kanw him best. The great assembly at Chiesgo—who saw him and felt the power of his elequence—were enthusiastic in his admiration. His mative modesty, his noble bearing, and his splendid recerd as a soldier and statesman clearly indicated to that convention that he was the man of destiny—fitted above all others to bear alout the banner of the great mino Republican party. No per lion of this great country can afford to have him defeated. A vote for him is a vote to uplied the honor, the integrity of our land and continue its safety and property. Then vote for Garfield! Hoso.
